Speaker at Conference Is Believer in Peace and as Such Indorses Police Power,

BALTIMORE, Md., September 23 .- J. G. Phelps Stokes, president of the Intercollegiate Socialist Society, at toganized societies throughout their various units great as well as small."

Substance of Address. The topic of Mr. Stokes' address was

"Defensive Warfare," and he spoke, in art, as follows: part, as follows:

"He is no good citizen who quietly acquiesces where wrong is done his fellow, and when, being able to help, he does nothing; particularly if being asked to help, he refuses such aid as he is able to give. Doubtless a mere voice of protest will check a wrong at times, but often the wrong advances more rapidly than the voice can follow—sometimes more rapidly than either voice or body can be interposed to stop it, and there are times when nothing can move swiftly enough to check it save the winged messengers of death.

When War Is Necessary.

"Where the wrong is so flagrant as ermanstadt an attack by two Ru- strousness, and where it is advancing too rapidly to be stopped by other means, war on the part of the outrage people may be not only right but esser tial. And such just and moral war need not be defensive merely. Aggres-sive war to stop a hideous and a mon-strous wrong may be highly moral, and refusal to wage it may be base and ignoble and craven."

Cross-Examination of Accountant on Valuation of Electric-Power Company Property.

TO CONTINUE TESTIMONY AT FUTURE MEETINGS

Attorneys for Corporation, Before Utilities Commission. Question the Accuracy of Witness' Findings.

An idea of the task the public utilties commission has before it in ese corporations operating in the District. was furnished last week by the crossexamination of Andrew Sangster, the emmission's chief accountant, in the Potomac Electric Power Company hear-

Attorneys for the company hamnered away at Mr. Sangster all week and have not yet finished with the witness. But before he is recalled it is planned to cross-examine Charles L. Pillsbury, who made a physical examination of the company's property. Mr. nation of the company's property. Ar., Pillsbury may occupy the stand for a week or more. After the commission's witnesses have been heard, the company, it is understood, will introduce direct evidence to show the value of its property. If the proceedings tontinue to the end under the open hearing plan and at the present rate of progress there is every probability, it is believed, that they will not terminate for months.

Character of Examination. The cross-examination of Mr. Sangster was of a minute character. It showed the purpose of the company to inquire strictly into every rating of the expert and it developed serious differences of opinion between the company and Mr. Sangster in regard to conclusions reached in his report. These differences repeatedly were made the basis of motions to exclude the report, which were overruled in every instance. Exceptions to the rulings invariably were noted, thus establishing a basis for an appeal to the courts if the company should be dissatisfied with the valuation eventually to be approved by the commission.

Attorneys for the company made no effort to conceal the fact that they believed they had made telling points against the Sangster report. From the outset their contention has been that Mr. Sangster's accounting methods were theoretical and impractical; that his system of making eliminations from an interest theory to ender the order to show the inquire strictly into every rating of system of making eliminations from capital account in order to show the cost of existing property produced in-accurate and incomplete results. Questioning of the witness as to various items was directed almost exclusively toward proving this contention.

Alleged Admission by Witness. Among the developments of the representatives apparently considered; important was the statement by Mr.

important was the statement by Mr. Sangster that his accounting methods, so far as he knew, had never been employed in an investigation of similar character.

Backing up their several motions to have the report excluded, the company's attorneys claimed that Mr. Sangster's testimony showed that the report was not an accurate statement, but merely an approximate representation of cost; that the report was vague and unreliable, because Mr. Sangster was unable to identify certain excluded items; that he had not make a critical examination of operating expenses, and examination of operating expenses, and that many payments charged to operat-ing expenses could have been charged
